

Welcome to the Q3 2018 issue of our newsletter.

We are pleased to share with you the latest issue of our quarterly newsletter, keeping you up to date with all the latest news from Crowe.

Many of you will have noted the continued evolution of the firm's name. Being part of a global family of independently owned firms, we made the decision to trade under the simplified name of Crowe. Over our 77-year history our firm name has changed a number of times but the ethos and client-centred service remains steadfast.

Over the last few months the firm has made a number of senior appointments to the tax team. Lisa Kinsella (profiled in this newsletter) has been appointed to the partner group and I very much look forward to working alongside her. We are delighted to have welcomed Alison D'Arcy, who joined us at the beginning of September as a tax director. Earlier in the year Maeve Corr joined us as head of private client services for the firm. These senior appointments reflect the ongoing growth and broadening of the firm's tax service offering.

Our M&A team has also been extremely busy with a number of high-profile transactions, including the sale of Donnybrook Fair to the Musgrave Group and the sale of Kings Laundry to French multinational Elis plc. Congratulations to partner Brian Geraghty for leading both those deals.

Finally, we are very proud of our staff who embarked on an ambitious charity initiative in support of a local Depaul homeless hostel on Little Britain Street in Dublin city centre. The staff-led CSR committee organised a range of volunteering and fundraising activities across the spring and summer months to lend much-needed support to this worthy charity.

New partner profile – Lisa Kinsella

Crowe is delighted to announce that Lisa Kinsella has been appointed as a tax partner. In this profile Lisa shares some detail on her background and her formative years at Our Ladys School in Terenure, where she demonstrated early on her leadership potential.

Lisa's career started off as a chartered accountant before she realised that taxation would be her forte. Soon after coming in the top three in the country in her Chartered Tax Advisor exams, Crowe lured her away from a Big Four practice. A passionate fan of music and travel, Lisa has her work cut out for her to balance her social life and the demands of her young family alongside working as a partner in a busy department. But for anyone who knows her – if anyone can find a way Lisa can! Read more.

2018 Irish hotel sector briefing

As a follow-up to the launch of the Crowe 2018 Irish Hotel Survey, the firm hosted a joint hotel sector briefing with Cushman & Wakefield at the beginning of October in the Conrad Hotel. Partner Aiden Murphy addressed over 180 industry guests, outlining the trading environment for the hotel sector while Cushman & Wakefield gave an overview on hotel development and transactions. JP Kavanagh, General Manager of The Shelbourne, was guest speaker.

Aiden warned that the next three years will be a period of adjustment for the Dublin hotel sector, as demand continues to grow, but the concentrated delivery of new supply will have an impact on profit levels. Following seven years of solid profit growth in the Dublin market, hoteliers need to be mindful of this new dynamic and plan accordingly by setting rates, forward-selling inventory and being patient while the market absorbs the new supply.
